WORLD CONGRESS
PARIS
FRANCE
FOR THE SOCIOLOGY OF SPORT
In 2015, the International Sociology of Sport Association (ISSA) will celebrate 50 years of hosting meetings and the publication of the 50th issue of its journal, the International Review for the Sociology of Sport (IRSS). On behalf of the Executive Board of ISSA, it is my privilege to invite you to join us at our annual World Congress for the Sociology of Sport, during which we will celebrate the history of the association and journal, reflecting on what the sociology of sport has achieved during these years and what challenges still face us. Through our congresses, ISSA provides networking opportunities which connect people who have a shared enthusiasm for supporting the association’s mission to generate knowledge about sports in society, engage with and inform people and sport policies, and contribute to human development in and through sport. The theme of this year’s conference is “The Sociological Lens and the Wellbeing of Sport”. We invite papers that will stimulate debate and discussion about the local and global significance of sport with respect to issues related to identity, equality, politics and environmental sustainability. Paris, France provides the ideal location for this congress — a city and nation with a rich cultural and sporting history, and long tradition in the sociology of sport. Delegates will have an opportunity to experience all of this during the congress. We look forward to welcoming you to the 50th anniversary celebrations of ISSA and IRSS at the World Congress of the Sociology of Sport in Paris, France, June 9-12th 2015!

Dr. Elizabeth Pike, ISSA President

During neoliberal societies, “wellbeing” is understood in a strictly individualizing way and becomes part of a dominant discourse that feeds on biomedicalization and contributes to “bioromality.” Digital technologies are brought in to enhance the development and maintenance of wellbeing through self-tracking, self-diagnosis, and Skinnerian methods of learning how to act on one’s own wellbeing. The wellness imperative obliterates political engagement and leads to the creation of the happy, fit and productive biocitizen, which is juxtaposed against the unfit, unwell and unproductive bio-Other. In this keynote, I present a feminist poststructural analysis that takes into account of power relations in sexist, classist, ableist, ageist, neo-colonial, Islamophobic, homophobic and transphobic contexts to critique the purported “humanitarian” interventions to save the “abject” bio-Other. I speculate on the intramentalisation of physical activity and sport within larger corporate schemes to expand markets in the name of wellbeing. I discuss the ill-conceived “rescue missions” in public health that exacerbate class divisions and reproduce patriarchal and colonial hierarchies. I conclude with thoughts on the place of sport sociology in the larger project of justice and “social wellbeing.”

Paris is the French capital situated on the river Seine in northern France, at the heart of the Île-de-France region.

The City of Paris has an estimated population of 2 million within its administrative limits. However the greater Paris area extends well beyond its administrative limits into the suburbs called «banlieues», to reach an estimated population of over 9 and a half million “Parisiens». Paris has many different nicknames, but its most famous is «The City of Light» known in French as La Ville Lumière. This nickname was given both for its fame as a center of education and ideas, and its early adoption of street lighting.

Paris is one of the world’s leading business and cultural centers and has been an important settlement for more than two millennia. Its many influences include fashion, arts, media, entertainment, science, education and politics. You may also enjoy the famous French cuisine and wine that can be found in many restaurants. Paris also plays host to many different international organizations such as UNESCO.

Paris has become one of the most popular tourist destinations in the world, with over 30 million foreign visitors every year. The city takes pride in its numerous landmarks such as the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame Cathedral, the Arc de Triomphe and The Champs Élysées, to name but a few, as well as popular resorts like Disneyland. Paris combines the attraction of its historical legacy intense cultural, academic, scientific, shopping and business activity. Paris is also well known for its architecture and its city landscape, inherited from the nineteenth century and the Haussmanian famous urban revolution.
